Most students opting for in-person classes

POP sees record enrollment

BY COLLIN OVERTON

While some families are opting for online instruction this fall due to the ongoing coronavirus pandemic, most are sending their kids back to the classroom, either by choice or school policy.

All Jefferson County Schools are now back in session, following months of planning with local and state health departments to come up with a way to get students back with their teachers and peers.

In the case of Southwestern Jefferson County Consolidated School Corporation, about 12-13% — or roughly 150 out of 1,286 students — chose to learn online this year. Enrollment totals are likely to change as the year progresses, as they do every year, Superintendent Jeff Bates said.

Madison Consolidated Schools did not have its enrollment figures finalized Friday after just starting school Wednesday, but more details are expected by next week.

Virtual learning can be requested upon discussion with school principals or the event that a student needs to quarantine, but everyone is there face-to-face otherwise.

Prince of Peace Catholic Schools, on the other hand, has a virtual plan available on a case-by-case basis but no one has enrolled for that yet, President Phil Kahn said Thursday. A handful of families have decided to do home-schooling for the year but have said they plan to come back, he added.

District-wide POP enrollment is 449 this fall with Shawe High School a 194, Pope John 205 and Pre-School 52 — all combined the highest in school history, Kahn said.

Virtual learning can be requested upon discussion with school principals or the event that a student needs to quarantine, but everyone is there face-to-face otherwise. If it comes to closing school, however, POP has a virtual learning program in place.

The Christian Academy of Madison is also face-to-face-only, and won't move to virtual classes unless mandated by the health department, school administrator Anna Gosman said. The Christian Academy is also seeing

Stellar team gives update on key ongoing projects

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Madison's Stellar Executive Team discussed progress of Crystal Beach, the Cotton Mill and a few other ongoing projects Wednesday night at its monthly meeting in the City Hall chambers.

Crystal Beach, which is due for new restrooms, shower rooms, an elevator to the second floor, a new pool deck and a new pool liner, will undergo renovation during the off-season in order to finish before the start of the 2021 season if all goes smoothly. The pool deck and liner were added to the scope of the project at an Aug. 3 City Council meeting, and team members have been taking measurements, photos and getting everything ready for the next phase, City Planner and Preservation Coordinator Nicole Schell said.

The city's decision this week to extend pool hours should not interfere with construction, she added. The pool will remain open on weekends through Labor Day weather permitting.

As for the Ohio Theatre, Schell said the city had recently hired the architectural firm RATIO Architects to work out plans for the façade, which will be updated to expose the white brick peeking out from underneath the siding along with additional stabilization work on the frame. The team is still looking at grant funding options and hopes to seek bids on at least part of the project by the fall, Schell said.

The owners group, meanwhile, is looking into grant funds to renovate the interior and fix damage caused by a fire in 2018.

Building plans for Georgetown Park are finished, however, and consultants are working to put together the bid document. A public hearing and bid date are coming soon, Schell said.

The project to install sidewalks, street crossings and additional lighting on Clifty Drive is also moving forward, but will start later in the spring.

The project to install sidewalks, street crossings and additional lighting on Clifty Drive is also moving forward, but will start later in the spring. Stellar representatives will meet with the Indiana Department of Transportation later in the month and ask to move the letting date — the date an agency receives and opens bids — back from February to later in the spring due to delays in submitting the right-of-way engineering and other components of the building process, Schell said.

Meanwhile, construction to repurpose the former Tower Tack Factory on West Second Street and Eagle Cotton Mill on Vaughn Drive is coming along quickly and both renovation projects should wrap up in the coming months, Schell said.

The old tack factory — soon to be converted into a senior apartment complex — is on schedule to have units available by September and offsite improvements are at about two-thirds completion, Schell said. As for the Cotton Mill building, organizers hope to open the hotel early enough to take reservations for the Kentucky Derby in March and April, she said.

The Stellar Executive Team will meet again on Wednesday, Sept. 9 at 4 p.m.

Cotton Mill owners hope to have the buiding's renovation as a boutique hotel completed in time to take reservations for next year's Kentucky Derby.

Merit Board promotes officers, hears tales of valor on others

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Madison's Police Merit Board promoted probationary officers Zachary Nicholson and Cameron Blankenship to full-time patrolman positions Wednesday night in the group's first meeting since June.

The Board did not meet in July due to concerns that COVID-19 had made its way into the police department, said board president Bill Andrews on Wednesday. Fortunately, the Madison Police Department has not recorded any cases since the start of the pandemic despite multiple officers being exposed over that time period, Chief John Wallace said.

The meeting started with a moment of silence for Senior Patrolman Jeremy Cox, who died last month after a five-year battle with brain cancer. Those wanting to donate to a future fund for his six-year-old daughter, Allison, can still drop off donations at the Madison Police Department, Wallace said.

Officers Nicholson and Blankenship both started with MPD on Aug. 12, 2019 and recently completed advanced training at the Indiana Law Enforcement Academy in addition to field

Columbus man charged with voyeurism

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Indiana State Police have arrested a Columbus man for felony voyeurism in connection with a massage business operated by his wife at their home on Pippin Court South.

Jason Correll

An investigation by state police detectives indicated that Jason Correll, 49, 3065 Pippin Court South, Columbus, allegedly hid a video recording device in a room in his residence where his wife operated the massage therapy business. The camera captured video of clients who had come to the residence to receive a massage. The investigation determined that Correll's wife was unaware of the recordings.

The investigation, initiated a day earlier, led Troopers to serve a search warrant at the residence Wednesday afternoon and evidence was located and collected.

Jason Correll was arrested on one count of voyeurism, a Level 6 felony. He was transported to the Bartholomew County Jail where he then posted bond and was released.

The investigation is ongoing and more charges are possible.

Anyone who received a massage at a residence on Pippin Court South in Columbus and feels they may possibly be a victim is urged to contact Indiana State Police Detective Jason Duncan at 812-689-5000. Duncan is being assisted in the investigation by Detectives Andrew Mitchell and Nate Adams, as well as numerous other troopers from the Indiana State Police-Versailles District.

The Repubic newspaper in Columbus is reporting that Correll is listed as the head coach of the Columbus Flames hockey travel team, as a head coach for Columbus Youth Baseball since 2016 and as a member of the Columbus Youth Hockey Board since 2018.

According to a Columbus Youth Hockey official, Correll has resigned from his coaching role and from the hockey board, and his resignations were accepted.

training work. Fellow officers called Nicholson a "very fine tactical officer" and said he was quick and decisive in his actions, while Blankenship "brought a wealth of knowledge" from his time in the US Air Force Security Forces, board member Bob Waller remarked. Wallace said Blankenship's "ability to perform all aspects of the job" is something rarely seen in a probation officer.

Two of MPD's most recent additions, probation officers Nicole Midgett and Jordan Perry, have also been working well with training officers on their respective shifts, said Wallace. He pointed out that Perry had played a substantial part in the handling of the Aug. 4 burglary at the downtown Dollar General Store and has performed well since being placed on night shift. Midgett, meanwhile, has shown a great deal of proficiency with firearms and could potentially see her training period shortened before she gets sent to the academy, he said.

Wallace also notd that Patrolmen Brian Ashcraft and Josh Nolan had been presented Medals of Valor for their decisive response to an incident on July 20 in which a teenager was found sitting on the small ledge outside the protective railing on the Madison-Milton Bridge. Nolan diverted the teenager's attention and prevented him from jumping while Ashcraft pulled him over the railing to safety.

"Although it placed the officers' lives in peril, their heroic actions led to a positive outcome in a tense situation," Wallace told the Merit Board.

Nolan also received a Live Saving Medal of Honor for a May 1 emergency in which he rendered first aid and CPR to an unconscious 14-year-old male in the 3400 block of Michigan Road. The boy's breathing stopped repeatedly, but Nolan was able to keep him alive until medics restarted his heart and saved his life. MPD Patrolman Brad Demaree also received the Life Saving Medal of Honor for his quick thinking when a vehicle crashed into a McCubbin Motors service bay, severely injuring employee, Daniel A. Price, 30, of Madison on July 20. Demaree was first on the scene and placed a tourniquet on Price's right leg, which stopped severe bleeding until he received medical care. Medics on the rescue helicopter later said Demaree's actions most likely saved the man's life, Wallace said.

"They're not looking for any accolades. None of them came to me and said 'Hey, look what I did.' It was brought to my attention by other officers or by reading their reports. They don't expect any rewards out of it but they certainly deserve them," Wallace said.

Wallace noted in his update that MPD made a staggering 92 arrests in the month of June and 63 in July, following an increase in narcotic arrests and investigations.

"I don't know that I've ever seen 92 arrests on the PD, other than maybe a Regatta-involved month," Wallace remarked.

MPD is currently in the process of reviewing standard operating procedures (SOP) through the Policy and Procedures Steering Committee that began work in June to address any potential issues in law enforcement policing and procedures. The committee includes a member of the police department, the mayor's office, the city's Commission on Human Relations, City Council and a citizen member.

Wallace asked the board to consider an modification to the SOP regarding secondary work, noting that a lot of officers work security at King's Daughters' Hospital and Ivy Tech Community College during their off-time but the current SOP requires officers to have worked a year before doing so. He pointed out that there was currently a shortage of security and said officers Cody Lewis and Jared Sweet would like to help even though both came on duty in March.

The proposal to amend policy will still need to go before the Board of Public Works and Safety, but merit board members were in agreement with changing the requirement from one year of service to approval from the chief of police.

Officers are also reviewing and tweaking SOPs regarding the evidence room and clerk position recently added at police headquarters to free up detectives from hours of time-consuming cataloging and paper work. Wallace said part-time evidence clerk Carol Lee has sorted more than 7,000 pieces of evidence, most of which is court-ordered for destruction by incineration, Wallace said.

"You can't afford to take an officer off the street and put them in there. They're too valuable on the street with 30 officers, so to have her in there is much appreciated," he said.

The Madison Police Merit Board will meet again on Wednesday, Sept. 9 as long as COVID-19 condition allows them to meet.

a few families choosing to homeschool this year, but overall has an enrollment similar to last fall with 138 students.

A lot of that decision has to do with the Indiana Choice Scholarships offered to students of charter schools by the Indiana Department of Education.

Students will not be eligible for the scholarship — which more than 50% of the Academy's students typically receive, and covers up to 100% of tuition — if they opt for virtual learning over in-person attendance, Gosman said.

Exceptions will be made if the school is forced to closed, but for now, students are back in class, she said.

Hanover, Ivy Tech reach transfer agreement

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Ivy Tech Community College students will have a direct path to a bachelor's degree from Hanover College through a cooperative transfer agreement signed by the institutions recently.

The agreement, part of Ivy Tech's "Start as a Sophomore" program, allows students to complete one year at any of Ivy Tech's statewide locations before transferring credits to Hanover for the completion of a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree.

"We are very pleased to collaborate with Ivy Tech to provide greater educational opportunities to Indiana students, particularly in this part of the state," said Dr. Carey Adams, Hanover's provost and vice president for academic affairs.

He added, "We're looking forward to welcoming more Ivy Tech students at Hanover and helping them to achieve their educational and career goals."

Eligible Ivy Tech students must complete 30 credit hours and earn the technical certificate in general education. Those credit hours include requirements in six areas: written communication (3-6 credits), speaking and listening (3-6 credits), quantitative reasoning (3-9 credits), scientific ways of knowing (3-10 credits), social and behavioral ways of knowing (3-9 credits), and humanistic and artistic ways of knowing (3-9 credits).

These credits will articulate into 7.5-9.0 Hanover academic units where a Hanover College graduate must complete 36 units for graduation.

Dr. Amanda Harsin, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the Madison campus of Ivy Tech, said, "While working on this project with Hanover College, I frequently remembered a quotation by my mentor, Margaret Seifert-Russell, who was a dear friend of both institutions. Margaret always said that comparing Ivy Tech's credit hour system to Hanover College's unit system is like comparing apples and oranges, but in the end, it is the bowl of fruit that feeds the student. I am proud to honor her with this new pathway."

To transfer, eligible Ivy Tech students must submit a complete application for admission, earn a course grade of "C" or better and have a 2.0 or higher grade-point average on a four-point scale. Successful applicants may apply a minimum of 30 credit hours toward any of Hanover's nearly 50 undergraduate degree programs.

Scrimmage held without fans

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

There were no fans there to watch and the outcome didn't count, but Madison and Shawe got a chance to renew their soccer rivalry with a preseason scrimmage at Madison Junior High School on Wednesday.

The scrimmage was played under normal rules, but with three periods instead of two and coaches were allowed on the field during play.

Madison "won" the game 5-1, but the score in the varsity-only periods was only 2-1 in favor of the Cubs and both coaches came away pleased with the outcome.

"Starting out, we were a little slow. But you tend to have that no matter the season whether it's a real game or a scrimmage," Madison coach Kyle Bipes said. "We finally got some things working through the middle and that's where we're going have to compete. If we work through the middle and compete, we're going to be very successful."

"Overall, we did well. We had some things to learn," Shawe coach Cameron Willoughby said. "I've got a lot of them that are athletic, but they haven't played a ton of soccer. So, teaching them spacing and the other stuff takes a little time."

The first 25-minute period was played essentially junior varsity only with Madison scoring three goals. Each team's varsity players began filtering in late in the first period and played all of the second and most of the third before closing out with penalty kick practice. Madison added two goals in the third period before Shawe broke through late with a marker.

Neither team ran any set plays and Madison especially spent the game working on different combinations. But the one constant throughout for the Cubs was defense.

"Defense is going to carry us just like it did last year," said Bipes, whose squad won 12 games and reached the regional championship. "We've got a lot of experience back there and they're going to control

Expectations high as volleyball hits the court

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Despite the challenges that come with playing a contact sport indoors during a pandemic, volleyball is ready to kick off the 2020 season today and next week with all four Indiana high school squads in action. Trimble County and Carroll County will have to wait until September.

A closer look at the four local teams that will start next week:

MADISON CUBS

Madison lost three starters to graduation off of last year's 8-20 squad and three others opted not to play this year. But despite a lot of new faces, there are plenty of reasons to be excited about the Cubs.

For one, Madison has a strong upper class filled with players who have gotten a ton of experience in recent years. And the freshman class is loaded with talent.

"We have a strong and positive group of upperclassmen on our team this year," said Madison coach Camille Crim, who enters her third season. "This team has really put in the time and effort over the last few years to make our team feel like a family. I am

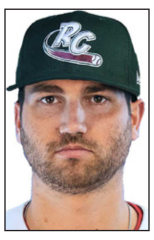
Thurston increases scoreless streak to 5

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Madison's Ryan Thurston ran his scoreless streak to five-straight games with a perfect inning of relief in the Fargo-Moorhead Redhawks' 6-4 loss at Winnipeg in American Association baseball on Wednesday.



Ryan Thurston

Thurston, a left-handed pitcher who graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 2013 and from Western Kentucky University in 2018, struck out two of the three batters he faced in the eighth inning. Of the 13 pitches he threw in the outing, nine were strikes.

Thurston has not allowed a run — earned or otherwise — since July 25, a span of $4\frac{1}{3}$ innings over five games. Overall, he is 1-2 with a 5.68 ERA and has allowed 25 hits while striking out 29 and walking only eight in 19 innings pitched.

Fargo-Moorhead continues a series at home against Chicago this weekend.

games. But I think we have a chance to score some goals as well."

One unusual sight was seeing Henry Grote wearing the red and white of Madison. The junior was Shawe's leading scorer a year ago but now has transferred to the school down the road. He currently has only limited eligibility and will play on junior varsity but his family is appealing the IHSAA's ruling.

Another unusual sight — or sound — was the lack of fans. Because of COVID-19 restrictions through the end of the week, no fans were allowed to attend, although a smattering did watch the match from outside the fence.

Willoughby said it was an unusual feeling to not hear the fans from across the field.

"Some of that is nice and some of it is not. You hate it for the parents because they haven't seen sports in forever," Willoughby said. "But it also takes a little bit of the pressure off of the kids because you don't have other students and everybody else yelling at them and you actually get to do more coaching."

Bipes was frank in his assessment of not having fans around.

"I'm a big fan. I get to hear how mad the players get at me and how mad the players get at the refs. I hear everything," Bipes said with a smile.

Madison opens the season today when it travels to Corydon. The Cubs then head to Southwestern on Thursday, Aug. 20. Their home opener will be Thursday, Aug. 27 against Jennings County.

Shawe opens the season on Aug. 21 and 22 when it plays in the Panther Cup at Jennings County. The Hilltoppers' home opener will be Monday, Aug. 24 against South Dearborn.

so proud of the community that they have become. The girls push each other and work hard to make up for lost time and to build upon where we left off last season."

Senior Gracie True and junior Brooklyn Cornelius are the leaders of the squad after starting a year ago at key positions. Seniors Caroline Bechman, Tori Hamm and Immi Mann, as well as juniors Taylor Harsin, Addi Mundt and Jenna Rohrer give the team a veteran core.

Madison begins the season at Batesville on Tuesday and heads to Salem on Thursday. The Cubs' home opener will be on Wednesday, Aug. 26 against Corydon.

SHAWE HILLTOPPERS

Shawe was just 4-19 a year ago, but with much of that roster back, the Hilltoppers are hoping to build on the experience gained last year.

New head coach Dennis Kilgore and assistant coaches Jeff Lawson and Kevin Jones — a veteran group — have plenty to work with, including a talented freshman class.

"We have high expectations for this team, this season. We came in on probably the most difficult season, them having to adjust to our coaching style, and us having to restructure and adjust to their playing style," Kilgore said. "However, they have been working their tails off the last several weeks, wanting to practice on optional days, knowing that their practices were shortened, and they would have less time preparing than in previous seasons. I have never had so many players ask how they can practice more or learn more and it is exciting."

Senior setter Abigail Hill and senior libero Phoebe Grote are both four-year starters and will anchor the team this season with junior Lina Leatherman, sophomore Emmalina Leatherman and sophomore Taylor Barron — a tall trio — manning the net.

Shawe opens the season at home against New Washington on Monday.

SOUTHWESTERN REBELS

With virtually everybody back from a team that won 18 matches, expectations are understandably sky-high in Hanover this season.

Four of Southwestern's projected starters earned all-Ohio River Valley Conference honors last year, including Madison Courier Player of the Year Kylie Eccles, and another could have easily been selected. Throw in a talented young group that is ready to break out and it's easy to see why the Rebels are both the conference and sectional favorites this year.

"Overall, we have a lot of athletic ability on this team and once we find our chemistry we should be a tough team to beat," longtime Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said.

All-ORVC performers Elle Ford and Marissa Naylor join Eccles at the net while libero Ashleigh Ream also earned All-ORVC honors. Two-year starter Meaghan Kramer will run the show from the setter spot.

Returning seniors Hayley Fresh, Abby Fulton and Autumn Harmon will play big roles as will senior Halee Smith, who moved in from conference rival South Ripley.

Southwestern opens the season today with a round-robin tournament with Greensburg, New Washington and South Decatur. The Rebels then head to South Dearborn on Monday.

SWITZERLAND CO. PACERS

Switzerland County enters the 2020 season with a new coach in former player Olivia Hewitt and a new outlook after the Pacers went 6-21 last season.

Several players earned valuable experience a year ago, something that Hewitt hopes will carry the team moving forward.

"We have a large team this year, which poses challenges as well as opportunities. The leadership and technical skills that our upperclassmen possess will undoubtedly lead us to a successful 2020 season," Hewitt said. "As a team, we are working through the uncertainties that come with this season we are living in, and it is only making them better athletes and students. We are hoping for a healthy and successful season in its entirety."

Senior Keirstan Oeffinger is a four-year starter for the Pacers and will be the team's unquestioned leader while junior Jaden Harrell is a natural athlete who will be one of the team's top weapons. Juniors Hannah Hayes and Nora Hankins, sophomore Carly Bennett, and freshmen Allena Weaver and Terra Oeffinger give the team a solid core.

Switzerland County opens the season today with a three-team round robin against Scottsburg and Crothersville in Scottsburg. The Pacers make their home debut on Wednesday against Oldenburg Academy.

Shawe's Wells picks up 2nd medal of the week

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

David Campbell

Shawe's Kira Wells chips onto the green during Thursday's match at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover.

Shawe freshman Kira Wells picked up her second medalist performance of the week in a quad-meet at Butler Falls Golf Course in Hanover on Thursday.

Wells, the granddaughter of former Madison golf coach Al Wilcox, earned medalist in her first high school match with a 57 at Belterra Golf Course on Tuesday but lowered her score by nine strokes with a 48 on Thursday.

Freshmen Gia Craig added a 56 for Shawe and Yolett Perez had a 61. Sophomore Bailey Kilgore missed the match for the Hilltoppers.

"We were short-handed tonight without Bailey but all three freshman improved their scores from Tuesday," Shawe coach David Hertz said. "Kira was solid as the medalist for the second time this week and I was really pleased with Gia and Yolett who improved 16 and eight strokes, respectively. Hopefully we'll be back to full strength for our home opener at Sunrise Monday."

The match also featured the home team, Southwestern, as well as Ohio River Valley Conference foes Milan and Jac-Cen-Del. None of the four schools fielded enough players for a complete team.

No individual results for Southwestern were available.

Southwestern's match against Trinity Lutheran on Friday was canceled. The Rebels return to Belterra on Monday to face Switzerland County, Jac-Cen-Del and South Ripley. Shawe hosts Henryville and New Washington on Monday at Sunrise Golf Course in its home opener.

Fixed vs. Fixed indexed annuities:

What are they, and how do they differ

Layin' It on the Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

In America, Benjamin Franklin created an annuity that paid a financial benefit to the City of Philadelphia until 1977, now that is longevity!
Stephen Dybwad

Annuities have long had a place in money management and estate planning. During the Middle Ages, feudal barons and kings issued annuities to cover the high costs of near-constant warfare or reward their loyal soldiers. Wealthy business owners also purchased annuities to create pensions for themselves and their employees.

But, while annuities have been around for thousands of years, it's only in the 20th Century that they have evolved as a variety of flexible, risk-averse alternatives to Wall Street.

Two of the most popular iterations of annuities are "fixed" and "fixed indexed." While these terms sound similar, the design of fixed and fixed indexed annuities differs significantly. If you are considering purchasing one, you should be aware of the differences.

What is a fixed annuity?

A fixed annuity is perhaps the most straightforward type of annuity. With a fixed annuity, there is the exchange of a lump sum or a series of monthly payments for a guaranteed future income stream. The contract between the purchaser of the annuity and the company defines all the terms and details.

When you purchase a fixed annuity, the money you have contributed grows tax-deferred at a fixed rate during what is known as the "accumulation" period. The annuitization phase of the policy is triggered when you start receiving payments.

Benefits of a fixed annuity

Fixed annuities provide several benefits, especially for people who don't like risk or who have put as much money as allowed into their employer's qualified plan.

Here are some of the upsides:

- A fixed annuity can convert to an income stream at retirement. People who purchase an annuity before retiring enjoy the ability to use that annuity to create retirement income.
- Savings may grow faster Annuities grow tax-deferred. They earn interest each year, but you don't pay taxes on that interest until later. Deferring taxes helps your savings grow faster.
- Safety Many people are tired of stock market ups and downs and crave safety. Purchasing a fixed annuity is a safer, more conservative way to grow your wealth.
- Predictability. When you buy a Multi-year Guaranteed Annuity (MYGA), you will know its annual interest rate and the precise value of your account at the end of the term.

What is a fixed indexed annuity?

Fixed indexed annuities provide mainly the same benefits as fixed annuities, with one intriguing difference. Fixed indexed annuities offer upside potential while providing no exposure to market risk.

Indexed annuities base their performance on an underlying index, such as the well-known S&P 500 ® Composite Stock Price Index. However, although a fixed indexed annuity's benchmark follows an index, your money is never invested in any stock market asset. It's percentage of yield is simply tied to the market performance.

Benefits of a fixed indexed annuity

Fixed indexed annuities have become very popular over the last few years, especially as they have added unique enhancements to help with things such as long-term care. They are an excellent choice for those who want the potential of higher gains but are still wary of market risk.

In addition to having most of the benefits of fixed annuities, fixed indexed annuities provide additional upsides such as:

- Potential for higher earnings. Earnings from fixed indexed annuities are usually a bit higher than those generated by traditional fixed annuities.
- Protection against risk. In exchange for accepting limited profits, people who purchase a fixed indexed annuity typically receive guarantees against the loss of principle.

Due to these enhancements, though, fixed indexed annuities tend to be slightly more complicated than other types of annuity products.

It is crucial that no matter what type of annuity you are considering, you do your research and due diligence. Then, sit down with an experienced annuity consultant who will answer your questions and make appropriate recommendations.

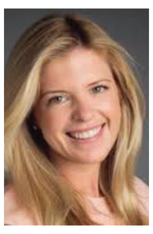
Making new friends



ANNIE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: How do you make friends when you are older? I am 60 years old, and I've never been a "joiner" or good at making friends. I do have a couple of friends who I see once in a while, but I haven't had a best friend since high school (and she wasn't that good a friend, it turned out). The vast majority of my social activities involve my husband's family. If I do step out of my comfort zone to become involved in something, it may give me something to do for an hour or two, but it never results in a friendship. It seems at my age that everyone has longstanding friendships, and they are all so busy (with their friends!) and don't need another friend. And I don't know how to make that first move. I feel so awkward and socially inept.

My husband travels frequently for work, so I am home alone, days on end, without a single text or call from anyone. One of my kids might text, but they have their own lives. It seems like everyone has tons of friends, and I would be happy with just one. How do I get out of this lonely pit that I'm in and develop a social circle? Or even make just one good friend? — Lonely Later in Life

Dear Lonely Later in Life: Friendship is one of the most important things in life, and you are taking steps to gain good friends. Making friends is a cinch by the inch and hard by the yard. You won't develop a large circle of friends right away, but finding one person to connect with is very possible. You have to be willing to get a little uncomfortable. If you connect with someone at a social activity, don't be afraid to ask him or her to join you for coffee or a walk.

Also, broaden your horizon. Just because someone is a lot older or younger or of a different gender doesn't mean you won't connect as friends. You might find a new friend in precisely that. If you are still really struggling, you might seek the help of a licensed therapist. Sometimes, loneliness can be a sign of depression. Once that is treated, you will be happier, and you can watch your life open up as you naturally have an easier time making friends.

Dear Annie: When I read the sweet story about handkerchiefs early this morning while having my coffee, it brought back wonderful memories of my dad, who always carried a white cotton handkerchief in his back pocket. There were three kids, and sometimes for Father's Day, his birthday or Christmas, we would give him a package of 100% white cotton handkerchiefs. Sometimes they had an embroidered straight edge, and sometimes they had a fancy "A" for his first name (Alfred) or an "S" for his last name.

After my dad died, I took his supply of white cotton handkerchiefs from the small top left dresser drawer. I gave some of them to my two brothers, and I even kept some for myself. Whenever I attend a funeral, I always tuck one of these sweet mementos in my purse.

If you are a father of a young son or have grandsons, please begin this sweet tradition of using a white handkerchief for the above occasions as well as giving a clean one to a lady to wipe away her tears. I hope you will pass on this sweet tradition.

Dear Sweet Tradition: What a wonderful letter, and a beautiful way to carry on the tradition. Thank you.

Wanting daughter to leave abusive husband

ANNIE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: You've probably heard this story a hundred times before. One of my daughters is in an abusive marriage. It is not physical but verbal abuse. Her husband is incredibly controlling: My daughter has no access to money or even mail. She has no freedom of choice in what she does, and he attempts to isolate her from family. He manipulates every situation, every possible situation to his advantage.

My daughter knows that she has full support from her parents and siblings, yet she freezes when she thinks of actually taking the step to leave him. They have a 6-year-old daughter who seems emotionally fragile; I suspect this is from what she has observed at home.

How do I support my daughter when I am so frustrated and saddened by how broken she is? What do I say to assure her that I am ready to help her, but she has to do the heavy lifting? — Always a Mom

Dear Always: I know it's frustrating and heartbreaking to watch a loved one in an abusive relationship. But if your daughter feels as though you're angry or frustrated with her, it only plays into his hand. You must keep the faith and keep the patience. According to the National Domestic Violence Hotline, on average a survivor will leave their abuser seven times before leaving them for good. And it isn't because they're broken or weak; it's because it's an extremely difficult situation for anyone to leave, for a variety of reasons: fear of retaliation, a sense of shame or embarrassment or a lack of financial resources, to name just a few. The more you understand the complexities of abuse, the more you will sympathize with your daughter's apparent hesitation. Visit https://www.thehotline.org or call 1-800-799-7233 anytime for information, resources and support. It's free and confidential.

Dear Annie: "Deliberating Diarist" and others who have asked about what to do with a diary of their most intimate thoughts and experiences might do well to take the long view. As a historian, I have read many diaries, journals and memoirs, some of which were never intended to be read by someone decades or even centuries later. What I have found in those diaries is the spirit of people who conquered life's tragedies and difficulties and moved forward often to a good life. Personal diaries can be roadmaps for future generations. They help us navigate our own rocky roads.

"Deliberating Diarist" has a great treasure in her complete diary. Her children will see her and her husband's struggles and their triumph over alcoholism. This might increase their affection and admiration for their grandfather and offer lessons in persistence and love. Even the saddest diaries help us understand how real lives are lived and help us find beauty and goodness in our own lives.

For those who are wondering about leaving a diary to a historic institution, they should ask if their diary can be set aside for some period of time — maybe 50 years — so that sensitive names and events will not hurt living people. This is often possible and eventually gives historians the raw material from which we recreate the history of ordinary people. — Historian

Dear Historian: I appreciate your wide-lens perspective and professional opinion. Thanks for taking the time to write.
